Aim of The Course

Vedas are learned through the chanting tradition of oral transmission and that's how the name sruti came in to being. Kerala followed a unique and systematic method of Vedic teaching and learning system in several aspects.

Among them the pronunciation of syllables with the application of phonetic rules and the usage of accent system through the Hastamudras are played a vital role in preserving Vedic studies. Vedic phonetics, (mainly examined by the Sikshas and Pratisakhayas) is an area of science which explored a vast area of knowledge on the sound production and articulation. In Kerala, Tamil chanting traditions are also living with some awesome peculiarities in its structure and content.

The course aims to explore the salient features and significance of chanting traditions of Kerala, to pave a path in the field of research to Vedic phonetics and its derivations in Indian linguistics and also to put forward the discourses in the Tamil traditions living in Kerala which are not much poured. This course is meant to promote and motivate the institutions and students those who are teaching and learning the Vedas traditionally.

Organized By	UGC STRIDE Component 1
Date and Time	24-07-2021 to 26-07-2021
Venue	Zoom Meet
Objective	<ul style="list-style-type: none">● To introduce the vast area of ancient Indian scientific literature● To analyse the History and Development of Indian Astronomy● To introduce the Textual Traditions of Ancient Indian Mathematics● To understand the wealth of Astronomical Erudition in Kerala● To understand the Āryabhaṭā and Kerala Mathematicians
Outcome	In corpus, the conference produced uncountable data on the field of ancient Indian Astronomy and Mathematics and shed a great deal of light on the treatises and observations from Kerala.

Report

An International Conference on Ancient Indian Astronomy and Mathematics with Special Reference to Kerala was conducted by the UGC STRIDE Component 1 Project of the College from 26th to 28th July 2021, focusing on ancient Indian scientific approaches in depth. Indian astronomy and mathematics hold a significant place in the history of ancient India and explore the philosophical development within the world of mathematics. The contributions of Prof. K. V. Sarma were discussed in a panel led by Dr. S. A. S. Sharma from Pondicherry. The presenters examined the extensive literature on Indian scientific treatises and the meticulous work done by Prof. K. V. Sarma. Dr. Vrinda addressed the interpretation of the rule of circuit radii of the cyclic quadrilateral, and there were discussions on the textual aspects of Medieval Kerala. The presentation highlighted Kerala's contributions to mathematics.

Dr. Venkateswara Pai introduced the vast corpus of astronomical literature mentioned in the Siddhānta and Kāraṇa texts, which cover both theoretical and practical aspects of the subject. His topic focused on the Karaṇapaddhati of Putumana Somayaji, a text or manual for composing a Kāraṇa (practical) work. Prof. Satyanand Kichenassamy raised three questions addressing the significance of oral tradition. His presentation was on "Geometry without Figures: Mathematics as Apodictic Discourse in Indian Texts." The conference generated a wealth of data on ancient Indian astronomy and mathematics, shedding significant light on the treatises and observations from Kerala.

UGC STRIDE Component I

STRIDE component I applied by our institution has approved by UGC on the topic: "Vedic Education System in Kerala - A Comprehensive Scientific and Interdisciplinary Analysis". Sreekrishnapuram V.T. Bhattathiripad College is one of the five institutions of Kerala who got approval under UGC STRIDE Component I. This project proposes to bring out the salient features of Vedic education system of Kerala against the backdrop of Indian Vedic tradition to explore its amazing vitality, intellectual impact, persistence and oral strength. The study will be an in-depth analysis of pedagogical and performative aspects of the system.

About the Conference:

Indian Astronomy and Mathematics are the two gems of the ancient Indian scientific tradition. India has a rich past in these areas since ancient times. Vedangiyotisa (1200 B.C) studies the mathematical and astronomical features with a scientific outlook. In the 12th century AD, while scientific research conducted in these two branches deteriorated in most parts of India, steady progress of the same was visible in Kerala. It continued the same until the 18th century. During this time Kerala contributed greatly to astronomy and mathematics; the theories of great scholars like Vaidasser Parameswaran and Sangama Grama Madhavan illustrate this fact. Modern research in these areas has been scanty and this provides scope for our initiative.

Broad Area:

- History and Development of Indian Astronomy
- Textual Traditions of Ancient Indian Mathematics
- Wealth of Astronomical Erudition in Kerala
- Mathematical texts and traditions of Kerala
